

SPARC partner publication 16th novembre 2024

Causes and impacts of farmer-herder conflicts through a political economy and food production lens: Case study in Gadarif State, Sudan

This report examines the causes and impacts of conflict through a political economy and food production lens, focusing on the farmers of Azaza Sogora Village and the Fallata pastoralists

Éditeur CGIAR

Par { "@context": "https://schema.org", "author": { "@context": "https://schema.org", "@type": "Person", "name": "Hussein M. Sulieman", "url": "https://www.sparc-knowledge.org/about-us/contributors/authors/hussein-m-sulieman" } }

Hussein M. Sulieman

Understanding land and conflict Working in a changing climate Sudan

Herders at the camel market on the far west side of Omdurman, Sudan

Credit Image by David Stanley - CC BY 2.0

Farmer-herder conflicts (FHCs) have become a significant challenge in Gadarif State, Sudan, threatening livelihoods and food security. This report, published by CGIAR, examines the causes and impacts of FHCs through a political economy and food production lens. It focuses on the interaction between the farming community of Azaza Sogora Village and the Fallata pastoralist group.

Read the report here.

Source URL: <https://www.sparc-knowledge.org/node/302>